

A public servant earns praise

I would like to share this with your readers. Not too often do you get to say thanks for a good deed that was done for you. I was in Johnston County conducting some business. I ran across a friendly gentleman and found out he was the registrar of deeds in your county, Craig Olive. We had a conversation, and he found out that I needed some assistance at the time. He instantly replied, "Sure I will do whatever I can for you and your family." I told him that I lived out of the county, but he didn't blink an eye to help. He led me in the right direction, and I appreciated it.

I feel like that not too many elected officials would offer a stranger any help. I would like to commend Mr. Olive for his kindness and help. The citizens of Johnston County are fortunate to have him as their public servant.
